table manner to each participant.

"Song of the Robin" was sung and whistled in chorus by twenty-five boys and girls of the graded school. Six young ladies from Cluster Springs displayed grace and culture with the tennis rack in a drill. Mr. Edgar T. Beazley's solo, "Dreaming, Love, of You," with piano accompaniment by Mrs. Charles T. Yancey, met with hearty appreciation, as was evidenced by the number of encores rocelved. Miss Sarah Craddock, of Cluster Springs, portrayed grace and culture Springs, its models and splendid banquet hail at the Masonic Temple. It was given by the number of encores rocelved. NORTHUMBERLAND SOCIAL

The oyster-shucking business has been a great success. Many hands, in fact, all that could be gotten, have found steady employment. Prices have their successful season. The truck fishermen are busy preparing for the coming season. Trap poles are being hauled and gotten in position, ready for the first approach of mild weather. This industry means much for this section. Thousands of dollars are realized yearly from it, and a poor for the merchants, etc. is becoming higher and scarcer each year; many mills are working steadily, paying high averages and realizing high prices for timber. But all of this means the fine forests in this section will soon be a thing of the past.

Cord wood is also bringing a good price, but it is becoming almost impossible to get hands to saw it. In fact the labor question is getting to be a very serious one in this section, even the past. the farmers have great trouble in curing help, and many of them will have to quit entirely unless something can be done. Working on the water pays so much better that the negroes and working class of white people are unwilling to work anywhere else. Warrant trails are numerous and our justice of peace is kept quite busy hearing cases.
